What's New in Camp?

From tzahal nights to overnights, when do Shay and Hadas and their fellow mishlachat members find time to sleep? The Nitzi Boys, Younger Ilanot Girls and Nitzi Girls all had an opportunity to experience tzahal night this past week. Special thanks to Shay and Hadas for all of their efforts and hard work.

A jet boat ride, ropes course, caverns, amusement parks, water rides, Broadway shows . . . Camp Morasha campers experienced all of the above and much, much more during this week's trips. Here's a round-up of Trip Day #2 at Camp Morasha.

Machzor Aleph Boys headed to Middletown where they visited Ring Homestead, an outdoor park with events like a rope's course, rock-climbing, activities called the centipede, tire traverse and dangle doo, among others. The boys worked hard and had a blast, as Rami Polinsky of B-2 shared, "It rocked!"

While their male counterparts were sweating and climbing, the Machzor Aleph Girls traveled in the other direction to Camelbeach Waterpark where they enjoyed rides like the Checkered Flag Challenge, the Titan Waterslide and the Kahuna Lagoon Wave Pool. The wave pool was a big hit with the girls of G-4 who named it their favorite. Camelbeach has 22 waterslides, the most in any park in Pennsylvania. I wonder if anyone had a chance to ride them all!

Younger Ilanot Boys and Girls made the trip to Lake George where they went to Great Escape, an amusement park, ice-skating, a cruise along the 32 mile long lake, and rafting down the Hudson River. The boys of B-11 couldn't agree on what the best part was, citing things like ice skating, the hotel beds and showers, the roller coasters, among other attractions.

Older Ilanot Boys and Girls had a tasty trip, whose highlight was Hershey Park. They also visited Kreider Dairy Farm, the largest dairy farm east of the Mississippi, underground caverns in Indian Echo Cavern, City Island where they played mini-golf and went paddle boating and a Harrisburg Senators baseball game.

The Alufim/fot trip started out as it always has in the past, with a trip to Great Adventure. However, where the Fims and Fot would spend day #2 was unknown by all, except of course the bus drivers. The reason for the secrecy soon became clear as the Alufim arrived in Shimon's Pizza in Queens on Thursday for an early lunch. They then traveled to Shea Stadium for an afternoon Mets game. Their day on the town continued with a visit to Madame Tussaud's Wax Museum, dinner at Kosher Delight in Manhattan after which they took in a Broadway show. Wow! What a trip and what an amazing surprise.

Not to be outdone by the Alufim/fot, Machon crossed the border into Canada. After jet boating in Niagara Falls, the group continued on to Toronto where they played Whirleyball, checked out the Playdium, an indoor playroom filled with virtual games, and ate at the world famous Marky's. They then took a ferry ride to Centre Island where they went bicycling. Day two featured fun in the name of Canada's Wonderland and enjoyment and education at the Ontario Science Center.

The best thing about trips like these, is that we all have something to look forward to for next summer!

Stayed tuned for a full report of Israel Day, Part I and an interview with Master Chef Ira Tannenbaum in next week's Shalhevet.

What's New In the Real World ?

Shuttle Discovery astronauts spent much time on Monday replacing a washing-machine-size spinning wheel called a gyroscope that steers the international space station. While Stephen Robinson and Soichi Noguchi were floating in space, twisting and turning the 660-pound gyroscope to get it to fit, scientists on Earth were working on a plan to fix shuttle damage. Shuttle cameras showed two pieces of insulation, each about an inch long, hanging from the spacecraft's belly.

On Wednesday, spacewalker Stephen Robinson gently plucked two strips of protruding heat shielding from the bottom of the space shuttle, completing the first in-flight shuttle repair with ease. Cameras operating from the shuttle's sensor boom and from Robinson's helmet provided spectacular views of his historic journey, as he first swooped out from Discovery's side on the end of a 55-foot crane and then curled beneath the orbiter to find and remove the two "gap fillers." The two gap fillers, which could have led to potentially hazardous hot spots on Discovery's underside during reentry, had seemed to be the last outstanding concern blocking officials from clearing the shuttle for its scheduled landing on Monday.

What's New in Israel?

The anti-disengagement movement scored a minor victor Wednesday night when the Israel police permitted thousands of anti-disengagement activists to continue their march toward Eshkol Park, 6 miles away from Ofakim in the direction of Gush Katif. The police had earlier promised to prevent protestors from advancing past a checkpoint it created about 1 mile outside the Negev town of Ofakim.

A blockade imposed by police and the IDF on Gaza has failed to deter thousands of yeshiva students from trying to break in over the past several weeks. Hundreds have succeeded. Those who have, gather at Kfar Darom's shul to learn Torah throughout the day and into the night. One veteran Kfar Darom resident pointed out that the majority of the approximately 120 yeshiva students and rabbis sitting and learning in the shul are not locals.

What's New in Sports?

Rafael Palmeiro of the Baltimore Orioles became the first high profile player to test positive for steroids under baseball's new testing policy. He received a 10 game suspension as result of the positive test. The House Government Reform Committee which heard Palmeiro's testimony in March that he had never used steroids, has opened an investigation into whether Palmeiro may have lied under oath. Palmeiro has pledged to cooperate with the inquiry and repeated his assertion, first made during a conference call with reporters on Monday, that he did not know how the illegal substance got into his system.

Barry Bonds doesn't expect to play again this season because of his injured right knee, putting his quest for the career home run record on hold.

Shaq signed a 100 million dollar, five year deal with the Miami Heat. The deal ensures Shaquille O'Neal plenty of added financial security while allowing the team salary flexibility to pursue other players.

Weather Update

(as of Wednesday evening, July 27)

He will also learn the entire parsha and haftorah starting at 11 AM at the Pavillon on Shabbos Parshas Devarim.

RABBI YEHUDA BALSAM

One of the most important rules we are told almost from the moment that we begin learning Chumash is that the Torah does not waste words. Indeed, we find numerous times that Chaza"l learn halachot from the fact that the Torah included an extra word, an extra letter, or wrote something in an irregular fashion. In the beginning of Mesechet Pesachim, the gemara actually lists p'sukim where the Torah stated something in a roundabout way instead of a direct fashion and counts the extra letters that the Torah 'wasted' in order to show us the value of a particular lesson.

Thus it is extremely striking that at the beginning of this week's parsha, the Torah begins by listing every single place that the B'nei Yisrael traveled during their forty year sojourn in the desert. This tale is told over the course of forty nine p'sukim, and contains little content other than the names of places. Why would the Torah spend so much ink to tell us a story that: a) we already would have known had we been reading the Chumash carefully until this point, and b) seems to have little or no value on its own. Furthermore, the second pasuk in the parsha tells us that Moshe wrote down these places at the behest of Hashem. If the entire Torah was dictated by Hashem to the letter, why would it be necessary to remind us that this particular portion was written upon special request?

It seems obvious that when the Torah tells us that Moshe wrote down the order of traveling "al pi Hashem" it is giving us special instructions not to disregard the lesson that is being taught in these forty nine p'sukim. What then is the message? I heard in the name of Harav Aharon Lichtenstein that the Torah is teaching us a lesson in what Hashem deems valuable. We may think that since Hakadosh Baruch Hu is the infinite creator of the entire universe He cares little for the daily grind in the life of a Jew. Perhaps he pays attention to some major events that change the course of history but certainly not to the small everyday occurrences. Parshat Masei teaches us that this is not so. Every small encampment and every episode of travel that the Jewish people experienced is deemed worthy of inclusion in Hashem's holy Torah. Even the mundane trips that seemingly lacked any productivity are recorded for eternity to be studied by the entire world. This is because, said Rav Aharon, every step a Jew takes in his life is deemed precious to Hashem.

As we approach the nine days and our minds stray to thoughts of teshuvah, let us remember that any and every step we take in our service of Hashem has infinite repercussions. No mitzvah is too small and no step toward kedushah can be deemed insignificant. Indeed, if we all take the time to make 'minor' improvements in our daily lives, perhaps the next time we read Parshat Masei, it will be in Yerushalayim Habnuyah.

Theme Thoughts

This week was the week of birchot hanehenin. Between Brachot Twister, Mishkan Graham crackers, trivia and contests in the dining room, and the new brachot decorations in the dining room, the brachot theme is in full swing for Machzor Aleph. Machzor Bet has learned about hakarat hatov as a corresponding part of the theme!

This past Friday morning marked the beginning, with a video of course, of the birchot hamitzva week in camp. This week will focus on the purpose of saying brachot on mitzvot, as well as awareness as to what the brachot are for certain mitzvot. In order to introduce those brachot, there will be every activity from making hadlakat neirot signs for the dining room, to baking and learning the brachah for hafrashat challah, to much, much, more! Stay tuned!

THE NINE DAYS in CAMP MORASHA

RABBI MARK DRATCH

This Shabbat is Rosh Chodesh Av and the beginning of nine days of intense mourning for the Beit Hamikdash. There are many things that we don't do as a sign of our sadness. Here are some of them as they relate to life at Camp Morasha.

Swimming and Showering: The prohibition of bathing, as during the period of mourning (שלושים), is a prohibition of bathing for pleasure. Therefore, showering to remove dirt, odor and sweat is permissible (preferably with cold or lukewarm water). (Do your bunkmates a favor, please!) Swimming for pleasure is prohibited, but swimming for instruction or for exercise is permitted. If the weather is exceptionally hot and exceedingly uncomfortable, bathing or swimming to cool off is permitted as well.

Other Lake Activities: Water skiing, tubing and the Iceberg are prohibited throughout the nine days. Row boating, canoeing and kayaking are prohibited only during shavu'a she-chal bo, the week in which Tisha B'Av falls. This year, since Tisha B'Av falls on Sunday, there is no shavu'a she-chal bo.

Other Activities: As Rock Climbing and Horseback Riding are not particularly dangerous, they are permitted during the nine days.

Music: Music is prohibited during this period, with the exception of educational or religiously inspiring events. Dancing for instruction or exercise is permitted.

Laundry: In general, doing laundry is prohibited during the nine days—and in the future when you are at home during this period, all your laundry should be done before the nine days. If a person has no other clothes to wear, he/she may wash what he/she needs even during this time period. In camp things are very tricky. We are responsible for the laundry for hundreds and hundreds of people and are on a fixed schedule with the Laundromat—collect Saturday night and send it out Sunday morning. If we don't do laundry, the campers will not have any clean clothes to wear (and we do hope you are changing your underwear at least once a day!). So we can't wait until you run out of clothes altogether and we can't do each campers laundry as he/she needs it, so we consider doing your clothes as mi she'ain lo elah chaluk echad, someone who only has one shirt, and allow laundry this Saturday night even though it is the beginning of the nine days (For those who want to check it out, see Bi'ur Halachah to Orach Chayyim 551, s.v. v'anu nohagin). For health reasons, all undergarments must be laundered. Outer garments may be laundered as required. Since our method of laundering differs from that discussed in the gemara, freshly laundered garments may be worn the entire week. We will not collect laundry next Saturday night which is Tisha B'Av and have arranged with a different Laundromat to do our laundry a couple of days after Tisha B'Av—keep posted for details.

Eating Meat: Eating meat and drinking wine is prohibited, except for a se'udat mitzvah, including Shabbat meals and a siyum.

"Is Today Another Day?"

This question can frequently be heard down at the girls' waterfront, hosts of "days" like Harry Potter Day, Finding Nemo Day and Gross Factor Day. Over the course of the past few weeks, Nitzi, Shtili and Ilanot girls have enjoyed these breaks from the normal routine.

Each event features races and activities unique to its theme. For Harry Potter Day, girls participated in being 'sorted' into their respective 'houses' by the sorting hat, a medley relay race entitled Going to Hogwarts, a game of Quidditch with water noodles serving as Nimbus 2000s and an opportunity to Make a Potion. According to Elizabeth Gross of G-6, "It was very fun and creative." "It was exciting, amazing and really fun," said Samantha Meisels (G-3). In Gross Factor Day, campers took part in an egg toss (raw of course), shaved balloons and had to push a greased up watermelon across while swimming. Needless to say, showers were in order for all participants following the conclusion of the day's events.

This past Monday, Finding Nemo Day was enjoyed by the Nitzi and Shtili girls. The girls were split up into three teams, named Nemo, Dory and Squirt. Each team sent representatives to participate in races including, Taking Nemo to School, Finding Nemo and Meeting Nemo's Friends. In Taking Nemo to School, swimmers had to swim across the lap lanes while holding on to Nemo in order to keep him out of the water. Finding Nemo involved searching throughout the whole waterfront to find blow-up fish, including Nemo. Each type of fish had different point values with Nemo being worth 100 points. Meet Nemo's Friends was an apache relay which included a ring toss to an octopus, a dolphin kick, riding a dolphin and a sea horse swim. The winner of the event received special Finding Nemo prizes. Did the girls have fun? Just ask Devon Greenbaum (G-7) who remarked, "It was so cool," and Yonina Leichtung (G-7) who thought it was "awesome." Kudos to the girls' waterfront staff, led by Chaye Lamm Warburg, for infusing some excitement into the daily swim periods.

Saturday Night Baseball Fever

By N.W.S.

In what promised to be a delightful evening of softball this past Motzai Shabbos soon turned delightful. As the throngs of A.K.'s and wait/staff descended upon the boys' upper baseball field, the harsh darkness of reality soon set in.

The lights were in place, however, they were in the wrong place. Oh well. Rumor has it that the wait/staff hid the lights so as not to face the probability of a defeat at the hands of the A.K.'s. The players soon realized that they would be unable to fulfill the mandate of our Mesorah, or tradition contained in the first line of Scriptures which speaks of "In the Big Inning".

Not to be stymied, Plan B was put into effect. Quickly switching gears, a volleyball game was organized by A.K. Captain Dov. A.K.'s Steve and Alan defected to the tennis courts after quickly deciding not to join the excursion to Wal-Mart.

The A.K.'s winning streak remained fully intact as they swept the youngins 4-0. Admittedly, two games were actually close and in fact the final game was won by the A.K.'s by a score of 15-13. So, remember waiters, you can run, but you can't hide! Of course, the A.K.'s can't run and can't slide.

Stay tuned for future hopefully enlightening sports roundups of the A.K.'s adventures as they try to relive their childhood fields of dreams.
